Revolved was created as a elegant theme that makes it easy to monitor your desktop while remaining fully customizable. It features transparent buttons on the side of the window that allows you to run programs without having to reveal the main monitor. Cracked Revolution With Keygen also features a "Taskbar of the Dead" that makes it easy to access other system settings when I'm not in a certain area. I've just installed it on my windows 7 (64 bit) and I noticed a few things: The theme crashes everytime I log out and log back in. It's probably because it crashes a few times a day. If I right click on my cursor and scroll down for 2 seconds to enable pinch to zoom, there's nothing on screen (it's supposed to be in focus, a few seconds later the dark screen appears). The conky config is disabled. I tried to enable it, but with no effect. These are the files from the theme folder that are installed: .DS_Store CMakeCache.txt CMakeFiles cmake_install.cmake install LICENSE.txt Manifest.in README.txt And this is the stuff from the /app folder: CMakeCache.txt CMakeFiles cmake_install.cmake install LICENSE.txt Revolved.png revolved.ini I've tried to find all the issues with the theme and I've found them: res/LICENSE.txt should probably be /res/LICENSE.txt Saving the changes and going back to the theme manager returns "error_log: could not find file to open" after saving (this is because CMakeCache.txt is empty) It crashes everytime I log out and log back in, which makes me suspect that it crashes everytime it tries to run the conky config. Those are the errors I have encountered, I suspect that others have found more problems with the theme, and I would appreciate them to be posted here. A: I had the same problem, I finally managed to solve it installing the experimental conky_weatherv2 pack from the conky website. The pack changed the conky weather plugin from conky to conky_weather, which is essentially conky_weather2. That's the only way I found to make it work :) You can find it 09e8f5149f

Q: IIS redirect isn't working when pre-rendering a site - nice explanation? I can't get the IIS redirects to work when pre-rendering a site. It will always redirect to the root url. What am I doing wrong? Redirect permanent / redirect already applied The strange thing is that it redirects to the correct subdomain name, and it redirects to the correct URL with the full path without rewriting the query string. For example, redirects to A: Your site probably doesn't have the same certificate as the root, or it has an Intermediate certificate, which is an intermediate certificate which has a higher priority. As you redirect, the two certificates are compared, and in this case the cert of the site is more recent than the one of the root.
